

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it, hence the increased demand for Alternatives. It is now well known that most diseases are due not to over-abundance, but impurity of the blood, and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alternative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned."—J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

Recommended

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommended it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

"Ayer's remedies continue to be the standard and medicines in spite of all competition."—T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

Dr. David Kennedy's CHERRY BALSAM.

For the cure of coughs, colds, sore throat, diphtheria, diseased lungs, asthma, bronchitis, whooping cough, etc., and all acute affections of the air passages, the chest, the pleura and the lungs. It contains no deleterious drug and can be safely administered to the most debilitated adult or the most delicate child. It strikes at the very root of pulmonary disease. Never conclude that a fresh cough "will get well of itself in a few days." It may do so on the other hand, by neglecting it, one may lay the foundation of some incurable pulmonary or throat trouble. Dr. David Kennedy's Cherry Balsam will relieve the cough almost immediately and prevent its becoming settled. Those whose business obliges them to travel and who labor more or less under chronic, consumptive or bronchial coughs should not fail to carry with them a bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Cherry Balsam, taking it occasionally in small doses as they may feel the need. The cough will abate almost on the instant and the breathing and expectoration become more easy and free. It soothes any sense of irritation that may exist, subdues inflammation or soreness in the lungs, throat and air passages, and prevents attacks which are always embarrassing and may prove serious during an absence from home. No other preparation offered to the public possesses anything like the power of this one over these common and dangerous complaints. To all right feeling persons it is a privilege as well as a duty to provide for the comfort of the aged parents or other relatives who live with and depend upon them. A valuable help in this direction is Dr. David Kennedy's Cherry Balsam, which is more perfectly adapted than anything else to quiet and cure the winter cough which so many old people are subject. Whether the cough arises from some chronic trouble or from colds and fevers, it is equally effective.

RIKER'S

EXPECTORANT

Acknowledged by all who have used it to be the most wonderful cure in the world for Coughs and Colds.

It is warranted to cure any ordinary cough, cold or croupy cough, and to relieve the throat and lungs of all kinds of irritation or dryness of the throat, and to induce a cold, four or six doses will cure.

It won't cure a horrible sore throat in one night, nor in fact will it cure anything in that space of time. It takes at least a day or so to cure a cold, but

IT GETS THERE ALL THE SAME.

It stops your cough almost at once, but should you stop taking it after two or three doses probably your cough would return. One thing you can do, however, is to keep your throat moist with it, and you will find it all O. K.

It is a trial of this truly wonderful medicine costs nothing, and as 100 cases out of every 100 will be cured, it is worth your while to take at least make the trial.

Price per bottle containing half a pint (enough to cure eight people if taken in time).

STORY ABOUT THE BOWERY.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THAT GREAT THOROUGHFARE DEPICTED.

The Bartender Tells How Wilk, the "Chap That Used to Clean Spittuous and Sweep the Floor" Got Religion And Sung Gospel Hymns.

The tall round the bar shone in the gas-light like polished silver. The rosewood bar itself, with its heavy mouldings and its exquisite mechanical finish, would have been regarded by a prohibitionist as a lamentable instance of art work misplaced. The gleaming mirror, set for a King's palace, reflected the shining back of the bartender's head, which had been newly barbered, and the faces of two men standing before the bar. One of these faces was seamed with purple rivulets, and in the eyes there was a wolfish glare as they looked upon the tempting array of bottles bearing such suggestive golden mottoes as "Old Rye," "Old Crow," "Kentucky Sour Mash," and others equally alluring. The bartender wore a white apron and an immaculate shirt front, upon which glistened a diamond as large as a baby's little finger nail. His black mustache was waxed to a painfully acute stiffness. He looked rosy, fresh and smiling until his eye took in the forlorn figure at the bar. Then his face assumed a hard, cynical look as he said:

"Say, Jack, ain't it about your bedtime?"

"Jack tried to smile, for the cucumber had just announced the fact that it was only 9 o'clock. Besides, Jack's bedtime had no fixed status in the order of time. Jack meant that he meant it to be understood as evoked by the

of the bartender. But somehow it didn't convey such a meaning to the bartender, for he continued:

"It's no use, Jack; you won't get a mouthful of gin or brandy or beer here to-night. That's the kind of a huckster I am, and that's the kind of a raspberry you are. See?"

"Billy, old chap, just a mouthful for the sake of old times? Hey, what d'ye say? You know an' the loss knows that hundreds of dollars o' your rocks has slid into that till. Come, Billy, just a little taste. Only a spoonful. The fire of life is burnin' me up."

There were tears in his voice, but the bartender was obdurate. Then Jack raised his clenched hand toward the ceiling and said:

"May the curse—"

He was interrupted by the appearance of another man, and of the room which was in shadow. The man caught Jack's hand in a powerful grip, and led him outside the door. Turning to a stranger, who had been an interested spectator of the scene, the bar-

keeper said:

"I suppose you got onto that fellow

what took Jack out? Well, he's the whitest man there is this side of Greenwood Cemetery, and don't you forget it. Do you know what he's doin' now? He's a takin' Jack round to the Y. M. A. to get some coffee."

Then Wilk returned. He carried still in his hand a neat little basket. This he set carefully on the floor, lifted the cover and removed a shining one-quart tin pail. Walking to the bar, he poured the beer from the pail into the ice-box, he drew the pail full of brown liquid coffee, and handed it to the barman. He returned the pail to the basket and closed the lid. After the door had closed behind him there was more whispering, but the only words which the two men could distinguish were, "Oh, ain't you awfully good?" and

"The bartender does and the bartender said."

"He's gone home with her."

Ten minutes elapsed during which time

the bartender seemed moody and busied himself rearranging the already orderly bottles on the bar. He walked straight to the bar. The passion and yearning and ardor of a soul aflame was about him. It shone in his eyes. It glorified the face marked with lines of dissipation. Holding his hand to his forehead, he looked at which he had polished so often Wilk said:

"Good by, Jim, old man; I'm goin' to leave you. The Young Men's Christian Association folks has got a job for me down on West-street, watchin' nights, an' I'm goin' to get a job at the Y. I've got a hundred of green slips o' paper with Uncle Sam's name

on 'em in the bank, an'—"

"Glad to hear it, old chap. Hope you'll come to see me once in a while."

Wilk dashed and ran his eye over the bar. He looked at the bartender and said: "J-J-Jim, I won't be able to come very often."

"Why not? You'll have all your days to yourself."

Wilk looked at his old confidant with the same look in his glance.

"Well, the fact is—the fact is, Jim, is—that that—Mag and me is goin' to get hitched

Sunday, an' I'll have to stay with her most of the time when I ain't workin'."

The bartender raised his head and busied himself under the bar. When he raised his head his face was pale, and he winked his eyes suspiciously. This he explained by saying there was a Bermuda ocean behind the bar. Just as the cucumber came out with a soft cough, he said: "I've got a hundred of

green slips o' paper with Uncle Sam's name

on 'em in the bank, an'—"

THE ELECTION AFTERMATH.

SOME OF THE AMUSING FEATURES AFTER THE CAMPAIGN.

Getting Ready to Go to Salt River—Gun Squads Celebrating the Victory—Old Wagers That Were Made—Vote for Harrison and Morton.

Warner Miller ran 177 ahead of the National ticket in Delaware County.

The Saugerties charter election will be held on the second Tuesday in December.

The Republican jubilee parade at Saugerties has been postponed until Tuesday evening.

A Poughkeepsie Democrat will be compelled to pay for eight new hats for as many Republicans.

It is proposed to make permanent organizations of Democratic clubs so that "no more will get away."

There is a rumor that the Democratic campaign clubs of this City intend to make a parade with mourning bands on their hats and suits.

A North-Rondout man wagged a game roster against a dog that Cleveland would be elected. The roster now flaps its wings and crows for Harrison and Morton.

Every night since election the cannons of Republican gun squads in Ulster County have been heard celebrating the victory for the protection of American industry.

Last night James Whitaker treated Wallace Hunter to a wheelbarrow ride, as a forfeit for betting on the election of Cleveland. The procession attracted considerable attention.—Saugerties Post.

A novel way of celebrating the election of General Harrison was introduced to day by a Rondout Republican. He tied a rooster in a chair in this office. The rooster crowed lustily, and the Republican was delighted.

The Democrats expected "great things" from the farming districts of New York State this year, but the farmers do not imbibe their politics with their beer. They are intelligent enough to think, act and vote for themselves.

A Democrat at Matteawan walked from that village to the Hudson River in his shirt, and in fulfillment of an election pledge, on Friday. To-day another Democrat sat on the peak of the roof of a hat shop for two hours.

Guns of the S. D. Coykendall Gun Squad, of Rondout, with the cannon used by that organization during the past campaign, went to Roxbury, Delaware County, this afternoon, where a Republican jubilee meeting will be held to-night.

Day after election a large roster jumped on the peak of the roof of T. Mergandahl's house, Union-avenue, this City, and crowded loud and lustily. "Ah!" said Mergandahl, "he is crowing for Harrison; he knows what he is about."

Paying off novel election wagers is now being done in Kingston. Last night Stephen Shaler had a ride in a wheelbarrow through North Front-street to the Kingston Bridge and back. From the wheelbarrow floated flags. A large crowd followed laughing and cheering.

Reports from several parts of Dutchess County, and from gentlemen who usually know what they are talking about, are that several well-known prohibitionists voted for David B. Hill. We believe it. They wanted their prayers and votes. To count straight for free run.—Poughkeepsie Post.

Thomas Donnelly, of Old Hurley, is 99 years old. He has been a life-long Democrat, but at the late election he began his political life anew by voting for Harrison and Morton. Mr. Donnelly was born in Ireland, near Dublin City, in 1789. He said if he had his life to live over again he would be a Republican.

An elderly lady of this village has felt so sure that our next President would be a Republican that she made with her own hands a beautiful flag, to hoist at his election. Although some of her Democratic friends told her she would be disappointed, still she worked away at the flag. Yesterday the flag was unfurled to the breeze at her residence.—Fishkill Journal.

A Rondout young man, who had wagged heavily on the election of Harrison and Morton, went home at a late hour on Tuesday night. He was met at the door by his mother, who said, "The election is over, and you stay up so late and losing sleep, for Cleveland is elected anyway." The spirit was still strong within the young man, and he replied: "Mother, I'll bet you $50 even that he ain't."

On Wednesday, while a number of Democrats were in a store on Union-avenue, Rondout, discussing the recent election, a stranger was introduced to the group. He was a grotesque figure emerging from the cellar. The figure was discovered to be the proprietor of the store dressed in an old Continental suit. Under one arm was the dismantled "head of Cleveland" and under the other was an old carpet bag. He marched up and down the store singing:

Brothers, get your carpet bags,
And follow me, to-day;
The boat is ready, the freight's aboard;
We won't have any delay.
For Cleveland has said the word,
Old Union will be a healthy one,
The trip will be a healthy one,
And we'll stay there 10 years.

The Chief Engineer of the steamer "City of Kingston" each night of the election of Harrison and Morton that he has decorated the engine room in a truly patriotic manner. Flags adorn the sides, and on one end are the portraits of Harrison and Morton, trimmed with flags. On the opposite end of the room is a large roster, under which are the following inscriptions:

Lot Her Crow, Gallagher!
Four, four, four months more,
Then he'll be fired out through
The White House door.

The engine-room is a pleasant place for Republicans to visit.

The Republicans in Milton celebrated the victory of Harrison and Morton in that village, on Thursday night. In spite of the muddy condition of the streets and a heavy shower of rain, a parade was made through the village. The Cathedral Post Brass Band, of Marlborough, headed the procession. The finishing run in Bell's Plush Works had been prepared for the purpose of guests. Enthusiastic women decorated the walls of the room with bunting. The happy paraders marched into the building. The evening was spent in speech making, singing and feasting. Cries of "What the matter with Harrison?" were heard. Cleveland was "sent to Buffalo" while the band played a dirge. Free trade was declared "busted" and Protection ruled supreme. There were about 200 people present. Townsend Mann, W. H. Townsend, Hon. C. M. Wood, and Westley L. Westervelt addressed the assemblage.

SWORE HIS VOTE IN.
[From the Roxbury Times.]

The election here was conducted in an orderly manner, only one riot occurring to cause any controversy. A man named William Mason, who formerly resided here, and who disposed of what interest he had in the town last spring and moved, with his wife, to New-Jersey, where he is now employed, came to the polls to deposit his vote. His right to vote here was challenged, and after considerable wrangling and boisterous language indulged in by the parties, Mason was permitted to swear in his vote. A warrant was immediately sworn out and he was arrested and taken before Justice Burham, where he pleaded not guilty, and asked for an adjournment for the purpose of procuring counsel.

Officers Elected.
The members of the Vernon Club, of Saugerties, have elected the following officers:

Millard Van Stenberg, President.
Philip H. Davis, Vice-President.
Robert E. Russell, Secretary.
Charles H. Wedder, Treasurer.
Charles H. Teller, Clyde Van Stenberg, Harlan Van Allen, Executive Committee.

Water Main Repaired.
The broken water main crossing the Esopus Creek at Saugerties has been repaired.

RECENT DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Demise of a Kingston Man—Died Suddenly of Heart Disease.

John Reynolds, of Grahamsville, Sullivan County, died of heart disease on Monday, aged 70 years.

The funeral of Thomas Donnelly, of Rondout, yesterday, was largely attended. Mr. Donnelly was a resident of this City for over 80 years.

Lewis B. Russell died at his home in Middletown, on Sunday, aged 64 years. Mr. Russell leaves a wife and five children; also six brothers and two sisters, among whom are Edgar D., James W., and Gilbert A., and Mrs. E. Lyon, of Ellenville.

William H. Dumont, of Kingston, died last night at the age of 36 years. He was the son of James H. Dumont. He had had several attacks of paralysis and death was caused by a stroke of this disease. For several years he was telegraph operator and ticket agent on the New York & New Haven Railroad. His death occurred suddenly. Since his illness his mother had become accustomed to hearing his heavy breathing at night. The absence of this sound awoke her about 3 o'clock this morning. She went to the bedside of her son and found that he was dead. The last day Mr. Dumont was out of doors was election day. He went to the poll in a carriage and voted the Republican ticket. Funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 34 Clinton-avenue.

[From the Danbury Weekly.]

The remains of Daniel Hasbrouck, a former resident of the town of Plattekill, were taken to Gardiner, Wednesday, from Brooklyn. Mr. Hasbrouck died at the residence of his son, Dr. Hasbrouck, in that City. The funeral services were held in Modern Church and interment in the Rural Cemetery. He was about 73 years of age.

WOES OF UNFORTUNATE PEOPLE.

A Farmer Meets With a Fatal Accident—Brook One of the Legs.

Frank Conkobe, of Ellenville, tripped and fell into the hold of his canal boat one day recently at Honesdale. He received severe scalp wounds.

Mrs. Webb Davey, of Westtown, Orange County, while attending a torchlight parade, on Monday, fell from a wagon. The wheels passed over her and she was severely injured.

[From the Gardiner Weekly.]

Augusta Wright, a 12-year-old daughter of John M. Wright, lives on the Alfred Johnson farm, in this town, while running from the house to the barn last Thursday, fell and broke one of her legs, just above the ankle.

[From the Red Hook Journal.]

Eugene Traver, a farmer residing a short distance south-west from this village, while drawing a load of wood, on Monday, fell from the wagon and some wood fell upon him. At first his injuries were not considered serious, but he died from the effects of them, on Thursday morning.

[From the New-Paltz Times.]

Wednesday morning, while some boys were playing near the cannery factory, some powder was placed in a tin can and a lighted match applied to it. An explosion followed, and the result was the death of a young son of Ralph LeFever, and Milford F. Roosa, son of Jacob H. Roosa. Their faces were filled with powder, and eyes closed. Mr. LeFever's son appears to be most injured, and he may lose the sight of both eyes. The other son, who was severely injured, can open and see out of one eye.

PHASES OF THE SEAMY SIDE NOTED.

Jewelry Store Burglarized—Two Persons Brought Here by the Police.

The jewelry store of Emory Loomis, Pine Hill, was burglarized on Monday night. Several watches were secured by the thieves.

The store of D. Eltinge on Bowery-street, Kingston, was broken into last night. Ten dollars, a piece of cheese, and some cigars were taken.

An habitual truant of the Catskill public school, named Benacum, has been sent to a house of refuge, by a Justice of the Peace there, on complaint of the President of the Board of Education, under the compulsory education law.

[From the Middletown Argus.]

The residence of L. Y. Ketcham, on Ball-street, Port Jervis, was entered by burglars, Tuesday night, and was robbed of $45, which was in two pocket books which were in the sleeping apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ketcham. Before leaving the thieves turned on the gas in the room, and as they nearly closed the door behind them the escaping gas almost asphyxiated Mr. and Mrs. Ketcham, and they were very ill when they awoke next morning.

COMING BALLS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

ULSTER'S BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Will Convene in Annual Session Next Week—Matters of Importance.

The Board of Supervisors of Ulster County will convene next week in annual session in Kingston. There is considerable speculation in regard to the Chairmanship of the Board. There are several candidates. The Board will hold its sessions in the Court Room. One of the matters to come before the Board will be that of heating the addition recently added to the jail. It is said that Supervisors are in favor of heating the Court House with steam, for the reason that it can be done more economically than the present way—stoves and hot air.

VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY

In the Matter of the Collision on the N. Y. Central Railroad.

A dispatch from Newburg to THE FREEMAN, to-day, stated: The verdict of the Coroner's jury, regarding the collision on the New-York Central Railroad, at Fishkill, censures the engineer and conductor of the freight train for following too close after the express, the station master for not seeing that the semaphore signal was properly displayed to protect the passenger train when at the station; and the conductor of the express for not seeing that his train was properly protected by signals.

A Hearing Had.

A hearing was had before Judge Kenyon, in Kingston, recently, in the case of Charles D. Miller vs. William W. Miller. The parties live in the town of Gardiner. The plaintiff claims defendant owes him certain moneys, on account, which the defendant denies. The case was tried in Justice's Court and appealed to the County Court. At the close of the hearing an adjournment was taken to December 26 and 27.

MINOR NOTES AROUND THIS TOWN.

[E. Jarrold in N. Y. Evening Sun.]

MORNING.—The fifteenth day of September was a memorable day in the annals of Cooney Island. A day on which the pulse of that locality throbbled with unwonted excitement, and the traces of tears were seen on many a rosy and wrinkled cheek. The dramatic occurrence which marked the autumn day elicited the sage reflection from Mickey Welch: "Begorra, ye can't tell twat minute is goin' to be yerixit." This remark was understood by those who heard it to imply a weighty philosophic truism as to the uncertainty of life; a sort of "in the midst of life," etc., deduction. But when the sun rose on that eventful day, and shot his glances of light down into the little valley, there was nothing in the atmosphere to indicate the pain brewing in the crucible of Fate. The leaves in Lindsey's Woods whispered as blithely, the chicken hawk circled on still wing over Doo-

THE ELECTION AFTERMATH.

SOME OF THE AMUSING FEATURES AFTER THE CAMPAIGN.

Getting Ready to Go to Salt River—Gun Squads Celebrating the Victory—Odd Wagers That Were Made—Voted For Harrison and Morton.

Warner Miller ran 177 ahead of the National ticket in Delaware County.

The Saugerties charter election will be held on the second Tuesday in December.

The Republican jubilee parade at Saugerties has been postponed until Tuesday evening.

A Poughkeepsie Democrat will be compelled to pay for eight new hats for as many Republicans.

It is proposed to make permanent organizations of Democratic clubs so that "no more will get away."

There is a rumor that the Democratic campaign clubs of this city intend to make a parade with mourning bands on their hats and arms.

A North-Rondout man wagered a game rooster against a dog that Cleveland would be elected. The rooster now flaps its wings and crows for Harrison and Morton.

Every night since election the cannons of Republican gun squads in Ulster County have been firing celebrating the victory for the protection of America's industries.

Last night James Whitaker traded Wallace Remor to a wheelbarrow twice, as a forfeit for betting on the election of Cleveland. The procession attracted considerable attention.—Saugerties Post.

A novel way of celebrating the election of General Harrison was introduced to day by a Rondout Republican. He tied a rooster to a chair in his office. The fowl crows lustily, and the Republican was delighted.

The Democrats expected "great things" from the farming districts of New-York State this year, but the farmers do not imbibe their politics with their beer. They are intelligent enough to think, act and vote for themselves.

A Democrat at Matteawan walked from that village to the Hudson River in his stocking feet in fulfillment of an election pledge. On Friday To-day a Democrat sat on the peak of the roof of a hat shop for two hours.

Guns of the S. D. Coykendall Gun Squad, of Rondout, with the cannon used by that organization during the past campaign, went to Saugerties, Delaware County, this afternoon, where a Republican jubilee meeting will be held to-night.

The day after election a large rooster jumped on the peak of the roof of T. Mergandahl's house, Union-avenue, this city, and crows long and lustily. "Ah!" said Mergandahl, "he is crowing for Harrison; he knows what he is about."

Paying off novel election wagers is now being done in Kingston. Last night Stephen Shuler had a ride in a wheelbarrow through North-Street to the Kingston Bridge and back. From the wheelbarrow floated flags. A large crowd followed laughing and cheering.

Reports from several parts of Dutchess County and infirm gentlemen who usually know what they are talking about, say that several well-known prohibitionists voted for David B. Hill. We believe it. They wanted their prayers and votes to count straight for free run.—Poughkeepsie Eagle.

Thomas Donnelly, of Old Hurley, is 90 years old. He has been a long-time Democrat. At the late election he began his political life anew by voting for Harrison and Morton. Mr. Donnelly was born in Ireland, near Dublin City, in 1798. He said if he had his life to live over again he would be always a Republican.

An elderly lady of this village has felt so sure that our next President would be a Republican that she made with her own hands a beautiful flag, to hoist at his election. Although some of her Democratic friends told her she would be disappointed, still she worked away at the flag. Yesterday the flag was unfurled in the breeze at her residence.—Fishkill Journal.

A Rondout young man, who had wagered heavily on the election of Harrison and Morton, went home at a late hour on Tuesday night. He was met at the door by his mother, who said: "There was no use of your staying up so late and losing sleep. I discovered that Cleveland was the victor, and one end of the trip will be a healthy one, and we'll stay there 10 year."

The Chief Engineer of the steamer "City of Kingston" feels so elated over the election of Harrison and Morton that he has decorated the engine room in a truly patriotic manner. Flags adorn the sides, and one end are the portraits of Harrison and Morton, trimmed with flags. On the opposite end of the room is a large rooster, under which are the following inscriptions:

Let Him Crow Gallagher!
Four, four, four more votes more
Then he'll be first out through
The White House door.

The engine room is a pleasant place for Republicans to visit.

The Republicans in Milton celebrated the victory of Harrison and Morton in that village, on Thursday night. In spite of the muddy condition of the streets and a heavy shower of rain, a parade was made through the village. The Ketcham Post Brass Band, of Marlborough, headed the procession. The finishing room in Bell's Plush Works had been prepared for the reception of guests. Enthusiastic women decorated the walls of the room with bunting. The happy paraders marched into the building. The evening was spent in speech making, singing and feasting. Cries of "What's the matter with Harrison?" were heard. Cleveland was "sent to Buffalo" while the band played a dirge. Free trade was declared "busted" and Protection ruled supreme. There were about 200 people present. Townsend Mann, W. H. Townsend, Hon. C. Meach Woolsey, and Wesley L. Westervelt addressed the assemblage.

SPOKE HIS VOTE IN.

[From the Roxbury Times.]

The election here was conducted in an orderly manner, only one incident occurring to cause any controversy. A man named William Mason, who formerly resided here, and who was disposed of what interest he had in the land here spring and moved, with his wife, to New-Jersey, where he is now employed, came to the polls to deposit his vote. His right to vote here was challenged, and after considerable wrangling and boisterous language indulged in by the parties, Mason was permitted to swear in his vote. A warrant was immediately sworn out and he was arrested and taken before Justice Burhans, where he pleaded not guilty, and asked for an adjournment for the purpose of procuring counsel.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The members of the Vernon Club, of Saugerties, have elected the following officers:

William Van Stenberg, President
Philip H. Davis, Vice-President
Charles H. Davis, Secretary
Charles H. Davis, Treasurer
Charles H. Davis, Executive Committee

Water Main Repaired.

The broken water main crossing the Nepona Creek at Saugerties has been repaired.

RECENT DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

Deaths of a Kingston Man—Died Suddenly of Heart Disease.

John Reynolds, of Grahamsville, Sullivan County, died of heart disease on Monday, aged 70 years.

The funeral of Thomas Donnelly, of Rondout, yesterday, was largely attended. Mr. Donnelly was a resident of this city for over 80 years.

Lewis B. Russell died at his home in Middletown, on Sunday, aged 64 years. Mr. Russell leaves a wife and five children; also six brothers and two sisters, among whom are Edgar D. James, W. and Gilbert A. and Mrs. E. Lyon, of Ellenville.

William H. Dumont, of Kingston, died last night at the age of 86 years. He was the son of James H. Dumont. He had had several attacks of paralysis and death was caused by a stroke of this disease. For several years he was telegraph operator and ticket agent on the New-York & New-Haven Railroad. His death occurred suddenly. Since his illness his mother had become accustomed to hearing his heavy breathing at night. The absence of this sound awoke her to the bedside of her son and found that he was dead. The last day Mr. Dumont was out of doors was election day. He went to the poll in a carriage and voted the Republican ticket. Funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 34 Clinton-avenue.

[From the Gardiner Weekly.]

The remains of Daniel Hasbrouck, a former resident of the town of Plattkill, were taken to Gardiner, Wednesday, from Brooklyn. Mr. Hasbrouck died at the residence of his son, Dr. Hasbrouck, in that City. The funeral services were held in St. John's Church and interment in the Rural Cemetery. He was about 73 years of age.

WOES OF UNFORTUNATE PEOPLE.

Frank Cointout, of Ellenville, tripped and fell into the hold of his canal boat one day recently at Honesdale. He received severe scalp wounds.

Mrs. Webb Davey, of Westtown, Orange County, while attending a torchlight parade, on Monday, fell from a wagon. The wheels passed over her and she was severely injured.

[From the Gardiner Weekly.]

Augusta Upright, a 12-year-old daughter of John M. Upright, who lives on the Alfred Johnson farm, in this town, while running from the house to the barn last Thursday fell and broke one of her legs, just above the ankle.

[From the Red Hook Journal.]

Eugene Traver, a farmer, residing a short distance south-west from this village, while drawing a load of wood, on Monday, fell from the wagon and some wood fell upon him. At first his injuries were not considered serious, but he was severely injured, and, on Thursday morning, died.

[From the New-Paltz Times.]

Wednesday morning, while some boys were playing near the canning factory, some powder was placed in a tin can and a lighted match applied to it. An explosion followed, which resulted seriously to James Traver, son of Ralph Traver and Mifford F. Roosa, son of Jacob H. Roosa. Their faces were filled with powder, and eyes closed. Mr. Traver's arm appears to be most injured, and he may lose the sight of both eyes. The other boy was more fortunate. He can open and see out of one eye.

PHASES OF THE SEAMY SIDE NOTED.

Jewelry Store Burglarized—Two Persons Nearly Asphyxiated by Gas.

The jewelry store of Emory Loomis, Pine Hill, was burglarized on Monday night. Several watches were secured by the thieves. The store of D. Elling on Bowers-street, Kingston, was broken into last night. Ten dollars, a piece of cheese, and some cigars were taken.

An habitual truant of the Catskill public schools, named Beaupre, has been sent to a house of refuge by a justice of the Peace, on complaint of the President of the Board of Education, under the compulsory education law.

[From the Middletown Argus.]

The residence of L. Y. Ketcham, on Ball-street, Port Jervis, was entered by burglars, Tuesday night, and was robbed of $45, which was in two pocket books which were in the sleeping apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ketcham. Before leaving the thieves turned on the gas in the room, and as they nearly closed the door behind them the escaping gas almost asphyxiated Mr. and Mrs. Ketcham, and they were very ill when they awoke next morning.

COMING BALLS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

Firemen who are Arranging for a Round of Pleasure—Tappan Camp, No. 1, S. of Y.

The members of Protection Hook and Ladder Company, of Catskill, will give a ball on Thanksgiving Night.

Thanksgiving Eve the members of Weber Hose Company, No. 3, of Rondout, will give a ball in the Academy of Music.

The members of Isaac H. Maynard Hose Company, of Stamford, are preparing to give another minstrel entertainment in that village.

The members of the Women's Relief Corps of Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R., will give an entertainment and supper on Wednesday evening, November 14.

The members of Tappan Camp, Sons of Veterans, of this City, will give a ball on Wednesday night, at Washington Hall. Delegations from various camps in New-York State are expected to be present.

ULSTER'S BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Will Convene in Annual Session Next Week—Matters of Importance.

The Board of Supervisors of Ulster County will convene next week in annual session in Kingston. There is considerable speculation in regard to the Chairmanship of the Board. There are several candidates. The Board will hold its sessions in the Court Room. One of the matters to come before the Board will be that of heating the addition recently added to the jail. It is said that Supervisors are in favor of heating the Court House with steam, for the reason that it can be done more economically than the present way—stoves and hot air.

VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY

In the Matter of the Collision on the N. Y. Central Railroad.

A dispatch from Newburgh to THE FREEMAN, to-day, stated: The verdict of the Coroner's jury, regarding the collision on the New-York Central Railroad, at Fishkill, censures the engineer and conductor of the freight train for following too close after the express, the station master for not seeing that the semaphore signal was properly displayed to protect the passenger train when at the station, and the conductor of the express for not seeing that his train was properly protected by signals.

A Hearing Had.

A hearing was had before Judge Kenyon, in Kingston, recently, in the case of Charles D. Miller vs. William W. Miller. The parties live in the town of Gardiner. The plaintiff claims defendant owes him certain moneys, on account, which the defendant denies. The case was tried in Justice's Court and appealed to the County Court. At the close of the hearing an adjournment was taken to December 26 and 27.

MINOR NOTES AROUND THIS TOWN.

Facts, Fancies and Gossip Heard by Reporters Here This Day.

Much poultry is sold in this city nowadays. The mud is deep on the roads in this City. The sewer on Pierpont Street, Rondout, is nearly completed.

THAT FINN BOY AGAIN.

A MEMORABLE DAY IN THE ANNALS OF COONEY ISLAND.

After Disturbing a Hornet's Nest and Getting Punished at School Mickey Finn Enjoys a Haircut Under a Undertaking—A Breathless Crowd.

[G. Jarrold in N. Y. Evening Sun.]

MORNING.—The fifteenth day of September was a memorable day in the annals of Cooney Island. A day on which the pulse of that locality throbbled with unvoiced excitement, and the traces of tears were seen on many a rosy and wrinkled cheek. The dramatic occurrence which marked the autumn day elicited the same reflection from Mike Welch: "Begorra, ye can't tell what minute is goin' to be yer knick." This remark was understood by those who heard it to imply a weighty philosophical truism as to the uncertainty of life; a sort of "in the midst of life," etc., deduction. But when the sun rose on that eventful day, and shot his glances of light down into the little valley, there was nothing in the atmosphere to indicate the pain brewing in the crucible of Fate. The leaves in the bushes and on the trees were still green, the chickens hawked their wings over Doolan's yard, where the geese were, and the female portion of Mrs. Finn's dairy ma-a-a-ed just as placidly as she had done on other and less eventful days.

Indeed, the ordinary routine of duties was being carried on as of old. At 6 o'clock Mr. Finn slouched down the old Old Point road to his work in the Glory Hole of the cement quarry. At 7 o'clock the breakfast dishes had been cleared away by Mrs. Finn, and above the clatter of plates and cups, and the hum of the household of domesticity, could have been heard this plaintive lament over the death of a favorite cow:

Mush-a-cree, Mush-a-cree,
Why did ye die,
Wid yer white face
An' yer shinin' black eye—
Gosh, how I miss ye—
My bliss is goin' bad,
Swate Erin go bragh!

At 7:30 little Mike stepped into the back yard with a tin pail under his hand. The nanny goat was quietly feeding on a cabbage stump near the door. Mickey climbed over the fence into the adjoining lot, and lay down in the long grass. He had a hunk of fresh dough in his hand. Lying on his back, he was looking at the sky, when a hornet's nest under the eaves of the roof, and I sent a chunk of dough with uttering him into the fragile nest. A dozen hornets, mad with rage, flew out and darted through the air in search of the aggressor. Then another chunk of dough came flying through the nest, and this time it struck the head of the hornet. They darted in erratic flight around the chimney, they flew, these winged poison-bearers, under the eaves, and even circled around the shanty. Then, as though animated with a unanimous desire to kill the trespasser, they all flew in a swarm down upon the helpless animal.

Twenty insects backs were humped and twenty darts were driven home in her sleek hide. Her short tail shot upward like a jury mast of a dismantled ship. She jumped four feet into the air and landed on the roof. She awoke the echoes in the valley. She began turning summersaults and running blindly against the fence.

"Arrah, musha, luk a' that now!" cried Mrs. Finn, as she came to the door with a pail in her hand. "Falk, I'm afraid th' nanny's honey."

While the goat was apparently striving to stand on her head and to scrape the hornets off by contacts with the fence, Mrs. Finn threw a bad quilt over her and carried the struggling animal into the kitchen, muttering as she did so: "O dear, o dear, her milk'll be spilt intirely."

With the help of Mrs. O'Brien, who had been attracted by the disturbance, the nanny was swathed in bandages of red flannel and poultices of wet salt and wood ashes. Meanwhile little Mike was grinning down the road on his way to school.

AFTERNOON.—During the afternoon Mickey drowned six flies in the ink bottle, and cut three new notches in his desk. He was the last scholar caught chewing gum, and was sent to stand on the corner beside the teacher with a clothes-pin on his nose and a chew gum as hard as he could chew for an hour. And while his jaws creaked, and he was forced to breathe through his mouth, he suffered the humiliation of being laughed at by the school. But when he was dismissed little Mike bounded away like a colt in a meadow.

When he arrived at home he found the nanny still swathed in bandages. She made a picturesque object, relieved as she was by her red flannel adornment against the green grass of the roadside. As soon as little Mike appeared at the door his mother saluted him with:

"Mickey, go down th' road an' meet yer father wha's comin' round th' turn. Tell him to go down th' corner an' get th' gill net quarter iv a pound iv grane and black tea, mixed, half a pound iv brown sugar, an' a ha'p iv yaller soap—wan iv them wenny 8-ctn bars. An' mind ye tell him t' charge it. Are ye hungry, me lad? Well, come here I'll give ye a bit o' brannan' molasses. Whin ye're comin' back I'll lave ye scrap out th' molasses pail, so I will, beca's there's on't that much molasses in th' pail as'll stick t' th' sides."

Encouraged by the promise of so munificent a reward, little Mike hastened off in pursuit of the billie gill net, and he was quickly harnessed to the boat cart. When his mother had closed the door of the shanty he secured the nanny also and put her between the shafts, so that he had his hand hitched tandem. Down the road dashed this untidy team, followed by a crowd of admiring children. The windows along the route were filled with inquiring faces as the goats went by at a gallop, the billie making frequent detours in pursuit of dogs, and more than one mother prophesied eventual harm to that "cider drinkin' Mike."

Just where the road turns down a steep incline leading to the Ponckhockie Chapel there rises a blue-stone wall forty feet in height, topped with a primitive railing. Mr. Finn had to pass this spot on his way home, and here little Mike, on the coast guard post on a green knoll. With his usual recklessness, he seated himself on the top of the wall with his feet dangling over the edge. While looking downward the thought occurred to him that it would be a great achievement to get to the bottom of the wall without waiting to estimate the danger of the undertaking, he threw his cap into the wagon, tightened the strap which held up his trousers, crept carefully over the edge and disappeared from the view of the goats. His action attracted the billie's attention, and the old green-beard deliberately walked to the wall dragging the nanny and the wagon after him, and looked down at his master who was clinging like a leech to the stones and slowly making his way downward. The goat snorted his disgust of the adventure, and he actively went back to his feeding. Scarcely had Mickey begun his hazardous undertaking however, when a crowd began to gather in the road below, attracted by the unusual sight of a small boy hanging by his fingers and toes upon the face of a forty-foot wall. Mickey had covered his feet with mud and with mud he had painted the cement company's bell rang, and his father came along the road above him on his homeward way. The crowd on the road below attracted Mr. Finn's attention, and looking over the railing he saw his boy hanging between earth and heaven. Mr. Finn was a strong man, "barrin' th' rheumatism," but when he saw the rocks underneath his son, and realized that a loose stone meant a roffin and the services of the priest, a blur came over the landscape, his face blanched, and his teeth snapped together so hard that the stem of the snuff pipe between them was crushed and the bowl shot up. Mickey's head and nose was smashed on the rocks below, scattering fiery sparks around. Mr. Finn groped blindly around for a minute as if he had been stricken with blindness. Then he darted down the hill like an elk in the mountains. His head was thrown back and he covered the ground in great leaps. His dinner pail fell from his hand and went rattling over the wall. The crowd cried in a half-suppressed whisper, as they saw the flying figure coming with streaming hair and set lips: "Here comes the boy's father!"

In less than half a minute Mr. Finn stood on the pile of loose rocks underneath his boy. The confused murmur of voices which greeted his father's approach attracted the attention of Little Mike. He turned his head and saw the crowd watching him. That one swift glance showed him the playful attitudes and the puffed faces of the men and women and the frightened glances of the little children. A great fear fell upon him and the top of the wall seemed to his strained vision to loom a thousand feet above him, and the rocks below seemed to rise up and reach up their terrible edges like Alpine ridges to mangle him. The ominous silence, too, oppressed him like a funeral pall, and the voice of the yellow bird singing in the tree only fifty feet away fell on his ear like the notes of the golden harp his mother had told him were played on by angels beyond the clouds. His lip trembled and he began to whimper, just as he had done after a whipping, and shrank closer and closer to the wall. A big bear stole down his tanned cheek and fell upon the upturned face of his father, who shivered as though a bolt from a crossbow had struck him at the contact. A groan slipped from Mr. Finn's lips and was echoed from the crowd below.

At this critical time Mr. Finn reached upward his brawny arms aching to receive a living burden, and from his lips faltered these words:

"Mickey, put yer fat in th' crack below. Ay, that's th' lad! Now, hang on wid yer hands! Careful, sonny, careful!"

A piece of stone dislodged by the boy fell upon the rocks. A shudder ran through the crowd. Then the climber's foot slipped, and he tumbled head over heels into the water, from parted lips in the road. But Mickey did not part. His body swayed outward, and by a lucky chance he again secured his footing. Mr. Finn lowered his hand at intervals to cross his breast, and his lips moved, but his eyes were fixed on the top of his boy, which was yet 20 feet above him.

"Mickey, brave lad, stiffen yer toe!" said he. "Luk out, now, yer yer toe!"

Slowly and carefully the inquisitive toe felt its way along the face of the wall until it met a crack, and never did a child show the affection for its mother which Mickey showed for the wall. But as he made his way slowly downward he was gradually getting weaker. The excitement was beginning to tell on his strength. He was now within 12 feet of his father. The twilight was rapidly falling and the wall was draped in shadows. The darkness hid the cracks. He rested his toes on a projecting piece of stone; there was a
